Mayor: times are hard, but city is solid

CHRISTOPHER CABALDON, West Sacramento Mayor, addresses the crowd. Times are hard, he said -- but West Sacramento can help itself by encouraging a 'shop local' campaign and building 'green' industries for the future

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon gave some shocking local unemployment numbers at his "State of the City" address Monday night. But he said West Sacramento has all the tools it needs to keep evolving into a vibrant "small-town" city.

Three thousand of West Sacramento's 16,000 workers are currently out of a job, he said. The local unemployment rate is 18 percent – far above the national rate.

"One out of six West Sacramentans is out of work. . . and three of the other five are anxious about whether they will have a job," Cabaldon told the audience at the Civic Center Galleria. "We also have more jobs than anyone else in the region."

But local workers don't always get those local jobs because of a "skills mismatch," he added.

Some of the solutions to produce qualified workers are now in place in the education system, Cabaldon argued. The school district has nixed a "problem" middle school, replacing it with kindergarten-through-eighth grade classes; a coalition of partners has made progress towards "universal preschool" that has educational value; the new high school campus is inspiring its students; and a new "early college preparatory" charter school is operational and will soon get a visit from President Obama's education secretary, said Cabaldon.

But getting "the number-one economic development priority for the region," he said, is getting ready to do business in the "green economy." Environment-related jobs and businesses are the future – and taking steps like considering a new local "green" building ordinance are part of that journey.

"It's about building a brand. . . to define West Sacramento as a place for green technologies and green industries through the region."

The city will get through the economic downturn because "unlike Roseville, Davis or Vacaville. . . we know what it's like to live in hard times. We did not grow up with a silver spoon in our mouth, or a factory outlet at our interchange (to provide sales tax dollars)," said the mayor.

At one time, West Sacramento was the hard-luck kid of the region, he said. He mentioned the career of city department head Val Toppenberg:

"When he came here to run the redevelopment agency close to 20 years ago, West Sacramento was still the wrong side of the tracks."

But now, 10 years after Raley Field opened and with a string of other successes under its belt, "it's time for West Sacramento to have a new narrative. We can't be the underdog anymore. Universities are studying us, other cities want to be us, and anybody who has any money left is investing it here in West Sacramento."

The city is successful attracting federal and state grant money because "we get projects done . . . without drama," said Cabaldon. "This year and next, West Sacramento will be competing more than $500 million in public infrastructure projects."

"On a per capita basis, that's about four times as much as the $800 billion stimulus package signed into law by the President of the United States."

Another central part of Cabaldon's message was the importance of "gathering places" to a small city.

"Pubs and coffee houses are just one kind," he said. "It's the reason why the Streets of London, the Nugget (weekly) wine tastings and the Starbucks in Southport have become so popular – there's a hunger for these places."

"We're not going to be the home to the opera, we're not going to have the region's biggest modern art museum. We're going to be the 'comfortable' place. . . where you go and everybody knows your name."

Those places, more than just maintaining a small population, are what create a "small town feel," said the mayor. Making more of them is going to require risk-taking entrepreneurs and a city government that makes it easy to open a business.

And Cabaldon had a message to those hoping to attract new businesses to the city – including a vocal group of residents who want a Trader Joe's store to come to town. That message was "shop local."

"I don't care if you don't like every single eatery in West Sacramento, you've got to go," he said. "The best chance to attract new West Sacramento amenities is to not close the ones we have now."

A big TV screen amplifies the comments of Denice Seals, seen in background. Seals is executive director of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce and hosted this year's 'State of the City' dinner address. (News-Ledger photos)

Cabaldon mentioned that two key city department heads are retiring. Stephen Patek, who runs the planning, engineering and public works departments, and Val Toppenberg, who runs the redevelopment agency, are both moving on after leaving their impact on the city's development. Both received standing ovations from the crowd as Cabaldon talked about their achievements.

Also on the agenda for the night were several awards and honors.

The "mayor pro tem," Oscar Villegas, honored Leonard and Kathy Triboli for their continued commitment to keeping somebody else's vacant parcels in their Westacre-area neighborhood properly landscaped and attractive.

Councilman Bill Kristoff praised the Grocery Outlet for community involvement.

And Councilman Mark Johannessen congratulated the West Sacramento Community Orchestra on "successfully bringing arts to the community."

All of which fit well into the mayor's message for the night, which was "Sustain the Momentum."

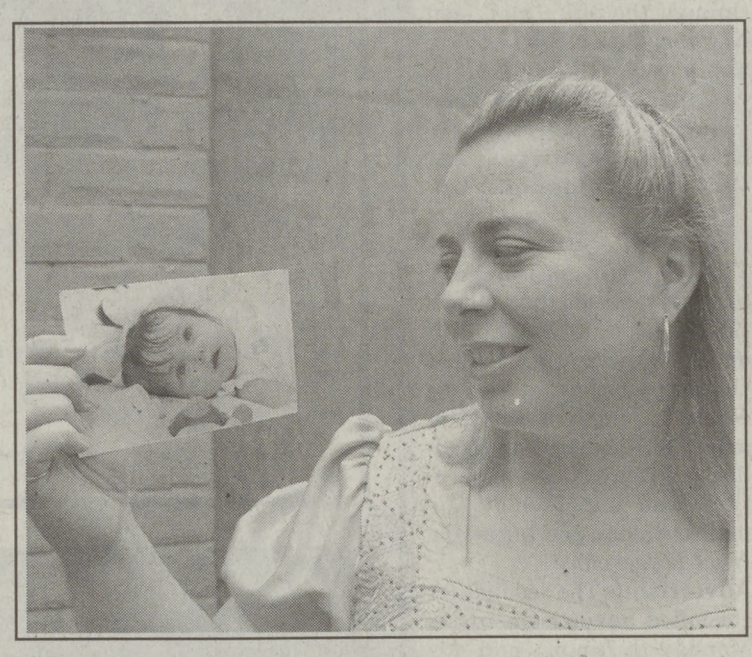

Celebrating foster care, & looking for more help

From the County of Yolo

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors held a press conference on April 7 to declare April as "Child Abuse Prevention Month" in Yolo County. Speaking at the event were members of the board of supervisors and Yolo County foster parents.

"Child abuse and neglect have lifetime consequences," said Helen Thomson, District Two Supervisor and chair of the Yolo County Children's Alliance and Child Abuse Prevention Council (YCCA). "The devastating impact to a child's self esteem and emotional health cannot be measured. In addition, the financial costs when abused children struggle as adults with homelessness, unemployment and incarceration make child abuse prevention a top priority for all of us."

An estimated 3 million children found to be victims of substantiated abuse or neglect in the United States. Each year, Yolo County's Child Welfare Services receives almost 2,000 calls of suspected child abuse or neglect and nearly 1,400 child-abuse referrals. Yolo County has more substantiated cases of child abuse than the statewide average — 12.5 percent in Yolo County versus 11.4 percent in California (as a percentage of cases reported).

Hiedi Andersen with a photo of her adopted daughter, Lily. Andersen is herself a former Yolo County foster child.

According to the Foster & Kinship Care Education program at Woodland Community College, if nothing changes in the United States by the year 2020 –

- Nearly 14 million confirmed cases of child abuse and neglect will be reported;
- 22,500 children will die of abuse or neglect, most before their fifth birthday; and
- More than 9 million children will experience the foster care system.

"Foster care is child abuse prevention on the front lines," said foster parent Hiedi Andersen. "I know from my own experiences as a foster child and now as a foster parent that every minute spent positively interacting with a child reshapes the future."

Newly licensed foster parent Marcia Reilly said "We never imagined a child so sweet, beautiful and perfect would come into our home as a 'foster child.' "These children placed into foster care because of abuse, neglect and/or abandonment – many times associated with their birth parents' addiction, go through much more in their lives than what most of us go through in a lifetime. I can no longer ignore that there are thousands of perfect little angels as the ones I held in my arms that need safe arms to hold them."

The Yolo County Children's Alliance began a Foster Parent Recruitment and Retention Program in July to recruit and support new licensed foster parents in Yolo County. This new program funded by First 5 Yolo has helped increase the number of local foster families by more than 73 percent in the past two years.

An evening worth forgetting

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Note: I was just asked by a longtime News-Ledger subscriber if there could possibly be anything more embarrassing than having your old high school girlfriend smash your beloved class ring to bits with a ball-peen hammer (which I mentioned had happened to me in last week's column), and come to think of it, there actually is, and I documented it in the following column, written more than a decade ago:

Back in my college fraternity days, I did any number of really stupid things I now wish I hadn't. One which I was recently reminded of was a blind double-date I went on with Lippy Lawson (not his real name of course), who was not only a fellow frat brother, but also one of my best friends at the time. He picked me up at our Phi Beta Chi fraternity house just before dark on a warm Saturday night – and it all started out so innocently.

Lippy, who was seated behind the steering wheel of his brand new 1967 Chevy Malibu, arched his back and strained his neck to get a better look at his handsome face in the rearview mirror. After he carefully ran his comb through his long blond hair, he began methodically inspecting his teeth for anything his toothbrush might have missed.

"Come on, Lippy," I pleaded, "we're going to be late. And at least tell me their names."

"Okay, okay. Their names are Carol and Debbie. They're cousins I met at a party last weekend. Debbie is yours."

"So what does she look like?" I asked.

"Who cares, man? This is just a trial run."

"Trial run?" I asked with concern. "Trial run for what? What are you talking about?"

"I want you to look down there and tell me what you see," said Lippy with a devilish smile, pointing down below the car radio. "Go on, check it out."

"I don't see anything," I said after a quick glance down at where he was pointing.

"Excellent!" said Lippy proudly. "Now, bend on down there and take a really good look."

"Why?"

"Just do it!"

On closer examination, I discovered a thin black cord tacked down to the lush dark gray floor carpet. The cord originated from underneath the driver's seat and at the end of it, taped securely to the underbelly of the car radio, was a microphone.

"You've bugged your own car?" I asked Lippy in disbelief.

"And all I have to do to turn on the recorder is push this little button under my seat. See?" He gave me a quick demonstration.

"But why?" I asked.

"Man, how many bucks do you think we've wasted over the years taking out girls we couldn't even get to kiss us when the night was over? Well, starting tonight, that's all over! We're going to finally have what a guy really needs nowadays – the inside information."

To make a long and very eventful story short, Lippy and I picked up Carol and Debbie and took them to the old Starlite drive-in theater in Sacramento. We had barely pulled into our space when Lippy slyly reached down, activated his hidden tape recorder, and announced that he and I had to go to the bathroom.

"Already?" asked Carol, a little surprised.

"Yep," said Lippy as he quickly climbed out of the car and motioned for me to do likewise. "We won't be gone long and we'll bring you guys back something to eat and drink," he also told the girls.

As we leisurely strolled up and down the hilly asphalt on our way to the snack bar, Lippy smiled and said, "We'll give them at least fifteen minutes, okay? Think about it, man. Two girls who know each other really well, left all alone to shoot the breeze. I bet they're spilling their guts right this very minute – and we're going to hear every single word they say."

"You're sick, you know that, don't you, Lippy?"

"Ain't it the truth," he said as he laughed out loud and pounded me happily on the shoulder.

When we finally returned to the car loaded down with cokes and popcorn, Lippy very casually reached down and turned off the recorder and announced that he had an early golf tee time the next morning and that we probably wouldn't be able to stay for the second feature. When the girls didn't seem to be the least bit disappointed, I began to worry.

A few hours later, after we had dropped Carol and Debbie off and parked along a secluded stretch of William Land Park, Lippy eagerly dragged out his tape recorder, rewound its contents, and gleefully pushed the play button.

"Now" said Lippy with conviction, "we're going to find out if we really want to take those two broads out on a second date!"

The first thing we learned about Carol and Debbie was that they knew a lot more cuss words than we did. And since neither of them had uttered a single profanity the whole night (at least not while we were in the car), this came as quite a shock. The real surprises, however, were still to come, and here are just a few of them, without the very colorful language of course.

"For some reason, I thought Lippy was a lot cuter than he is," said Carol. "I must have been pretty drunk at that party where we met last week. And what is that god-awful cologne he's wearing? I don't know about you, but I swear, I'm just about ready to barf!"

"I wish I had known that Daryl is so @%# skinny," said Debbie, her voice full of disappointment. "You know I can't stand scrawny guys with no muscles and no butt."

"What if Lippy tries to kiss me?" Carol asked her cousin. "If he does, I swear, I'm going to barf!"

"Did you see that big old ugly mole on Daryl's face — right next to his nose?" asked Debbie. "He looks like Abraham Lincoln."

"I know," said Carol. "Moles on a guy's face make me want to barf!"

And so it went, one demoralizing put-down after another, none of which I've ever forgotten, but most of which, thank heavens, can't be reproduced here.

"Well, Lippy," I finally managed to say after about ten minutes of pure torture, "I don't know about you, but I think I've heard enough."

"Me, too," reluctantly agreed Lippy as he turned off the tape recorder and admitted that the whole thing was a pretty dumb idea.

"Just don't be telling anyone about this Lippy, okay?"

"Okay, I won't."

"You promise?"

"I promise, Abe."

SPORTS

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The 2009 NFL Draft is set to take place April 25-26 at Radio City Music Hall in New York City at 1 p.m. Saturday and will be broadcasted live on NFL Network. Teams select college players in seven rounds that are spread out over two days and this year the Oakland Raiders are slated to pick at the No. 7 spot while the San Francisco 49ers will enjoy the No. 10 position, barring any kind of trade up or down in the draft process.

Draft position are determined by reverse order of finish and last year the Detroit Lions (0-16) obviously have the first pick followed by Ram, Chiefs, Seahawks, Browns, Bengals and the Raiders at No. 7. The Jaguars and Packers will pick before the Niners. The Raiders also have the 40th pick in the second round while the Niners will select 43rd.

On Sunday (7 a.m.) the Raiders will pick No. 71, 126, 216 and the 49ers will have pick at No. 74, 111, 146, 171, 184, 219 and 244. So what are some of the needs Al Davis and his crew will address this weekend or will hard nose Niners coach Michael Singletary pick a quarterback, if USC's Mark Sanchez slips through to the No. 10 spot?

The Niners need to beef up their pass rush with a nose tackle or a defender that can attack the quarterback. The 49ers haven't had a defender in double-digits sacks since Andre Carter had 12 ½ in 2002. The 49ers quarterbacks have been sack 110 times in the past two seasons so maybe a couple offensive linemen would be near the top of their priority list. The Niners could also use another running back to take the load off Gore or maybe add another fast wide receiver that can catch the ball.

The Oakland Raiders need help everywhere but they lost another wide receiver to free agency so a huge upgrade at that position is a must! The Silver and Black haven't had a receiver with 1,000 yards since Moss in 2005.

The Raiders have a good young QB (Russell) and top running back (McFadden) and have added veteran Jeff Garcia to mentor their quarterback but they still to protect their investments with some depth on the offensive line. Their secondary has been a thorn in their side especially at the safety spot with top picks Michael Huff and Derrick Gibson relegated to second string. Don't rule out a trade by either team to move down in the draft and stock pile a few new bodies.

Kings Korner

While the NBA is in the first round of the playoffs the Kings management is trying to evaluate their current situation regarding the head coach job and the possibility of landing the first round pick in the June draft.

The Kings could have a shot on landing Oklahoma sophomore Blake Griffin, who averaged 25 points per game, 16 rebounds and shoots around 67% from the field and also has a knack of getting to the free throw line nearly 12 times per game.

Rumors have the Kings interviewing of big name coaches like Jeff Van Gundy, Bill Laimbeer, Avery Johnson, Mike Fratello, Del Harris, Bernie Bickerstaff and former Kings Coach Eddie Jordan. Personally I would like to see Eddie Jordan come back and finish what he started before he was fired by former owner Jim Thomas. Anyway, whoever they select he better have some defensive management skills because the Kings were last in team defense last season.

Enough of Kings talk - let's talk NBA playoffs and predict which teams will advance to the second round:

In the East, the Chicago Bulls are giving the defending champion Celtics a run for their money as the series shifts to Chicago tied at 1-1. Boston is without Garnett so I like the Bulls in six games. King James and the Cavs will sweep Detroit and Atlanta will take the Heat in 7 games. The toughest series will be the rejuvenated 76ers battling the Orlando Magic. The Magic could be upset but I like Orlando in seven.

The West is up for grabs with the Lakers the only team on target to reach the finals. The Jazz have the team that can beat L.A. but Kobe won't let them. Lakers win in six games. The Houston Rocket could surprise a few teams and are loaded with talent. Houston wins in five games. The battle of Texas between Dallas and San Antonio is a tossup but I like Dallas in an upset win in seven games. The series to watch will be the Denver Nuggets against New Orleans. Denver wins the series in seven games but not until they have a couple of overtime games along the way.

Diamond Notes

The Giants (4-8) continue to struggle going into the second week of the season but their highly publicized starting rotation is showing signs of snapping out its slump. Barry Zito (0-2, ERA 10.00) is really starting to worry Giants' management but the old man Randy Johnson (1-2) won his 296th career win and flirted with a no-hitter last week dropping his ERA from 14.00 to a respectable 6.32.

As the 45 year-old pitcher is closes in on the magic 300 wins mark the Giants bats are on strike. The G-Man are 12th in offense, batting .239 and have only managed to score 37 runs with only 6 HR's.

The A's (5-7) are also having problems scoring runs to provide a cushion for their beat up bullpen that hasn't been able to hold a lead. The A's bullpen consists of seven right-handers and with no southpaws.

The Oakland A's newly revamped battling order is suppose be their strong point but the green and gold have been null and void. The A's are still waiting their All-Star third baseman Eric Chavez to play full time and Nomar Garciaparra is hurt already, nursing a sore calf. Both

RCHS tennis squad stays perfect in conference play

From River City High School

Following a wet spring break, the River City High School tennis team survived a terribly windy day and upset-minded visitors from West Campus High of Sacramento, prevaliling 5-4 last Tuesday. The Raiders entered the match 10-0 in Capital Valley Conference (CVC) play.

The #1 girls doubles team of Ranika Prasad and Sarah Aguilar and the top boys duo of Jim Saetern and Vongsri Vang won their matches early, but West Campus took both boys singles matches, as well as the #2 boys and #2 girls doubles contests. However, the Raiders staged a remarkable comeback as #2 girls singles players Marisa Arellano won her match 6-1 in the third set, the mixed doubles team of Tuyet Hoang and Rudy Maltez came through with a 10-5 win, and Lydia Maystruk finished off her 3-hour #1 girls singles battle with a 6-2 third set victory.

Later in the week, after pounding Antelope 8-1 to improve to 12-0 in the CVC, the Raiders suffered their first loss of 2009, falling 6-3 to visiting Escalon. Three of the six losses were in deciding third sets as the overall match was very tightly contested. River City received another win froim Hoang and Maltez, 6-4,6-3 in mixed doubles, Jim Saetern won 6-4,6-2 at #1 boys singles, and the #2 girls doubles team of Monica Anaya and Lai Saetern prevailed 7-5,6-3.

In the week ahead, RC hosts El Dorado at 3:30 pm on April 22nd, travels to Cosumnes Oaks on the 23rd, and then participates in the annual Quincy Invitational Tournament on April 24th and 25th.

Rotary hits 100 members

Don't forget: 'Take a Kid Fishing' day is this Saturday

From Clayton Blakley
West Sacramento Rotary Club

The Rotary Club of West Sacramento, now in its 60th year, celebrated another historic milestone on Friday as it eclipsed 100 members with the induction of seven new members.

One of the club's largest gatherings ever took place over lunch Friday at Club Pheasant to mark this occasion. Yolo County Supervisor, West Sacramento's first mayor and current "West Sacramentan of the Year" Mike McGowan was the official "Member Number 100" and was happy to add another "title" to his impressive list of designations. Other new additions to the club included Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig, John Janosko, William Panos, Damien Galford, Patrick Hill, and member number 101, Donna Dotti.

As club president Dan Ramos noted, "This growth in membership (an increase of around 25% since Ramos became president last July) is significant not just to our club, but more importantly to the community we serve, as we'll be able to provide more help to our growing City at a time of unprecedented need."

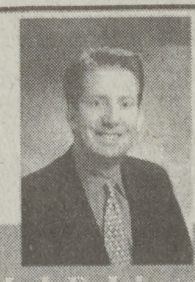

Another noteworthy milestone for the club was the visit by a Brazilian Group Study Exchange sponsored by Rotary to facilitate young professionals (under 40) learning about industry practices in other countries (a group from the local Rotary District 5180 is currently in Brazil doing the same). As the five member contingent presented their stories, interests and livelihoods, it became apparent that although separated by thousands of miles and differences in culture and language, there were also significant similarities shared with West Sacramento Rotarians.

Most of the group were from families in the business of growing grapes and producing wine and were delighted to receive as gifts from the club a bottle each of the West Sacramento Rotary Club's 60th Anniversary wine – a Clarksburg Appellation Tempranillo.

Coming up this Saturday April 28th is a Rotary sponsored event that the whole community will be able to enjoy, the 3rd Annual "Take a Kid Fishin' in Our Community" Day. Last year, an estimated 350 kids participated in the days' activities. Event co-founders Drew Gidlof, past president of West Sacramento Rotary Club and Tony Schwall, past president of West Sacramento's Centennial Rotary Club estimated that at least seven or eight dozen fish were bagged during the second annual event last May. The event again takes place at the pond next to Our Lady of Grace School, and will feature fishing clinics and loaner equipment provided by Department of Fish and Game. Kokanee Power will be sponsoring the event for the third time and other sponsors and supporters include the West Sacramento and Centennial Rotary Clubs, West Sacramento Chamber, Parks & Recreation, Wal Mart, Waste Management and Sportsman's Warehouse.

This is a great opportunity to bring your children, ages 15 years and younger, to experience the joys of fishing in a safe and controlled environment (bait and instruction will be provided). The event is free and will take place, rain or shine, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.

Arbor day celebrated

From Louisa R. Vessell

West Sacramento City Councilman Wes Beers presented a proclamation to Joan Liffring last Wednesday to honor Arbor Day in the city. It was the first time a West Sacramento resident accepted a proclamation for Arbor Day on behalf of the residents of West Sacramento. In having Liffring accept the Proclamation, it was a gesture to have her talk about her love of trees and inspire the public to do the same.

Liffring is as 15 year resident of West Sacramento. Besides her many volunteer activities, including work with the West Sacramento Historical Society and the California Railroad Museum, one of Liffring's passions is maintaining her garden, shaded by two beautiful Dawn Redwood trees. Native to China and once thought to be extinct, the Dawn Redwood is as remarkable tree, and Liffring is probably its most ardent fan.

At the drop of a hat, Liffring can recount botanical detailed of her beloved Metasequoia glyptostroboides from memory, or by consulting a three-ring binder of information she's collected.

Do you know who this early resident of West Sacramento is?

Public health 'heroes' include anti-tobacco leader

In celebration of National Public Health Week, three "Public Health Hero" awards were announced on April 7 by the Yolo County Health. Each year, the department presents these awards during Public Health Week to community members and staff who have exemplified the values of public health.

This year's employee award was presented to Jessica Estrada, a health outreach specialist. The community award was presented to the Winters Healthcare Foundation, and received by Christopher Kelsch, the Executive Director. And a special lifetime achievement Public Health Hero award was presented to Dr. Bette Hinton, retired health officer/director.

Jessica Estrada was recognized for her skills in developing the tobacco youth coalition (YUFA STAR) from 15 to 45 members with groups in Esparto, Woodland, and West Sacramento. Her work with the youth has helped them learn skills that they use to make a difference in their community by working with elected officials, community members, and organizations to implement tobacco free policies. She encourages and mentors the youth to grow in their education and their skills to make a difference for a healthier community.

The Winters Healthcare Foundation provides primary medical care services to residents of the Winters area. They understand that the needs of their patients are greater than the illnesses they contract or injuries they incur, and they work to coordinate their needs with the help of the entire community. Their practice is built on providing all the benefits of quality primary care: modern medical science, preventive health education, and patient advocacy. Their sensitivity to the patients they serve and their understanding of the importance of quality healthcare services distinguishes them as a public health oriented healthcare service provider.

The Lifetime Achievement Public Health Hero award was presented to Dr. Bette Hinton, retired Health Officer/Director for Yolo County. She received her training in pediatrics, preventive medicine and public health, and used this training as a foundation to improve the health and well being of all residents in the communities she served.

She began her career as the health officer for rural Monongalia County West Virginia. She brought that experience with her to Sacramento County where she served as health officer until 1999. In 1999 she became the health officer of Yolo County, and expanded the role of public health in emergency response activities, and many department programs have been recognized by the state and other professional groups as "best practice" and examples to follow.

"Policy, prevention, and protection are the three 'Ps' of Public Health," states Dr. Joseph Iser, Yolo County Health Officer/Director. "These awards are given to individuals and organizations that protect the health and safety of the community through services based on these principles."

National Public Health Week celebrates the successes of the public health system in protecting and enhancing the health of the community. This year's theme is "Building the Foundation for a Healthy America" which promotes building a stronger national and local public health infrastructure to support future changes in health throughout America.

To hear more about the future of public health, listen to a podcast interview with Dr. Joseph Iser, located at www.yolohealth.org under 'What's New'. To receive ongoing updates from the Yolo County Health Department, follow the news on Twitter at www.twitter.com/yolohealth.

A RESIDENT OF WASHINGTON SINCE 1871, SOULE LAID AT REST

Last Sunday, November 24th, John A. Soule, a pioneer of Washington and a resident of the town during 47 years, was buried in the City Cemetery in Sacramento.

He was in his eighty-fourth year at the time of his death. He was a native of Portland, Maine, but had been a resident of California since 1870.

John Soule was thoroughly honest. After years of hard struggle he accumulated a small competence and on retiring from the service of the S. P. Co. was pensioned in amount that helped to keep him during several years. His wife died seven years ago.

John A. Soule belonged to the Church of the Golden Rule, as he often said himself, and although raised a Methodist, his policy in religious, as well as secular affairs, was to render justice to all men and to give unto Caesar the things that were Caesar's, but unto God the things that were God's.

Soule's death was the result of old ago. During several years he had been growing weaker until lately he was forced to confine himself to his home. It was in that home that he lived in Washington for 47 years.

To mourn him he leaves J. G. Soule, Mrs. J. J. Lindsay and C. C. Soule of Washington; also Mrs. Lottie Brisbin, a daughter, in Napa, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Flossie Grigsby, of Napa.

His funeral was held last Sunday from his home, the pall bearers being J. D. Barry, J. G. Bright, H. Buckingham and W. Leinberger. The services were conducted by the undertaking firm of A. D. Fenton & Co.

WILD MAN GIVEN 60 DAYS FOR DISTURBING THE PEACE

Last Friday evening, Frank Webber, a camper in a vacant lot on the western edge of town, imbibed too freely of the cup that cheers and feeling a grudge against somebody he settled on Professor Case to vent his spite.

Late in the evening, he appeared in front of the Case residence on Fifth street, brandishing a knife, a rifle and a pistol. The professor advised him to leave the premises because Mrs. Case was suffering with a severe attack of influenza and became extremely nervous at the antics of the man.

He left but returned in a short while and made further demonstrations. Judge Barry and several of the boys of the town were called by Professor Case and seeing Webber's condition, they arrested him after a struggle. He was placed in the calaboose until Saturday morning when he sobered up and was sorry for what he had done.

Pleading guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace, he was sentenced to sixty days in the County Jail by Judge Barry.

FOUR COUNTIES WILL PAY FREMONT WEIR ASSESSMENT

Orders finally fixing and approving Fremont weir site assessment No. 4 for $219,000, have been issued by the State Reclamation Board.

Four counties are partially included in the assessment, the date for which calling will be announced in the caurse of a few weeks. Sacramento City is not affected.

The counties and the amount of the assessment of each are as follows:

Sacramento, $38,463.72; Sutter, $150,854.40; Yolo, $24,371.02; Colusa, $5,310.86. The northern portion of Sacramento County, opposite the weir, is affected.

Public hearings on the proposed assessment were held the latter part of October.

MILLING COMPANY FILES ARTICLES

Woodland, Nov. 28.—Articles of incorporation of the National Rice Milling Company were filed in the County Clerk's office here Wednesday afternoon.

The capital stock of the corporation is $100,000 and 1000 shares have been issued to sell at par of $100. The company was incorporated some time ago in Sacramento County, but the certified copy of the articles of incorporation was only filed here yesterday. The mills will probably start active operation in the very near future.

The principal stockholders in the concern are Thomas, Stephens & Matteil, local grain dealers, and C. S. Morse of Alameda, who becomes the general manager of the big mills which have been erected on the Yolo County side of the Sacramento River.

PUBLIC SCHOOL WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY, DECEMBER 2D

It has been decided by the School Trustees of Washington that next Monday morning the public school will be opened, following the epidemic of influenza which closed nearly all the schools of the State.

The law provides that time lost through an epidemic is not counted against the children, but Professor Case, the principal, is over anxious to bring all the classes up to the regular schedule, even though the school term may be cut short.

He believes that this may be done by spending an hour or two extra of each day in school and he feels that parents would be only too glad to consent to this arrangement if only the trustees will so ordain.

The trustees have not signified yet what their intention is in the matter but no doubt they will take action to bring the children to a state of perfection, as nearly as possible, in each of the different grades before the end of the year.

MUNSON IN GOOD HEALTH AT CAMP LEWIS

Mrs. C. A. Rivers, whose home is on Second street, near Harriett, is in receipt of a letter from Major-General J. D. Leitch conveying information that her son, Kenneth T. Munson, familiarly known as "Dick," is in good health and making a splendid record for himself.

He was promoted twice since his entry into the service of the United States, and has been extremely busy in his work with Battery E, 39th Field Artillery.

Mrs. Rivers is a Red Cross nurse who is liable to be sent over seas for duty because of the record she made in nursing influenza cases in Washington and Sacramento.

POPULAR HOSTELRY OPEN FOR BUSINESS AGAIN

On Thanksgiving the Riverside Inn, which had been closed by its proprietor, Frank Globin, during four weeks of the influenza epidemic in Sacramento, was again opened in a blaze of glory.

Globin misses no opportunity of catering to the public. Forever on the alert for something new and always serving the best of meals, he has gained recognition from a bohemian class of people who are willing to enjoy life, interfering none with their neighbors and caring nothing about the business of other people.

Persons afflicted with venereal disease, in future, must have a permit to travel from one State to another. Yet the authorities acknowledge that social diseases are spread more by society women than by known prostitutes.

RICE MILLS WILL BE OPEN FOR BUSINESS NEXT MONDAY

The great mill of the California State Rice Milling Company will probably open for business next Monday morning.

Nearly all the machinery has been moved in and a night force is busily engaged in installing it and placing the structure in condition to make rice flour, rice products and for family consumption.

The work of superintending the installation of machinery was under the management of Vice-President T. J. Garvey.

The National Rice Mills, under the management of C. S. Morse, will also start milling next Monday. All the machinery in this concrete building has been placed and will likely need but little trial before the work starts.

Mr. Morse is looking for the arrival of a large consignment of rice from up-river points and a great deal from the rice growing section of Yolo County.

FREE AS AIR, MONEY NO OBJECT IN GOVERNMENT

Washington, November 26.—By a strict party vote the Senate Finance Committee decided to recommend that yield from the 1920 Revenue Bill be limited to $3,000,000,000.

Ten Democratic members, who voted for the amount suggested by Secretary McAdoo, were opposed by the seven Republicans.

Before adopting the $4,000,000,000 limit the committee voted down a proposal by Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Democrat, to leave the $6,000,000,000 bill of 1919 unchanged for 1920 and use the $2,000,000,000 surplus for paying outstanding Government obligations

The vote was 9 to 8, Senator Gore joining with the seven Republican members.

Republicans object to fixing any limit for taxation in 1920 because they expect to control both the Senate and House in the next Congress. Minority members of the Finance Committee said tonight they would take their fight to the floor of the Senate and some Republican leaders have said that if the Democrats insist upon this provision of the Revenue Bill enactment of the measure by this Congress may be blocked.

The motion to fix the limit of 1920 taxes at $4,000,000,000 was made by Chairman Simmons. The vote on the roll call follows:

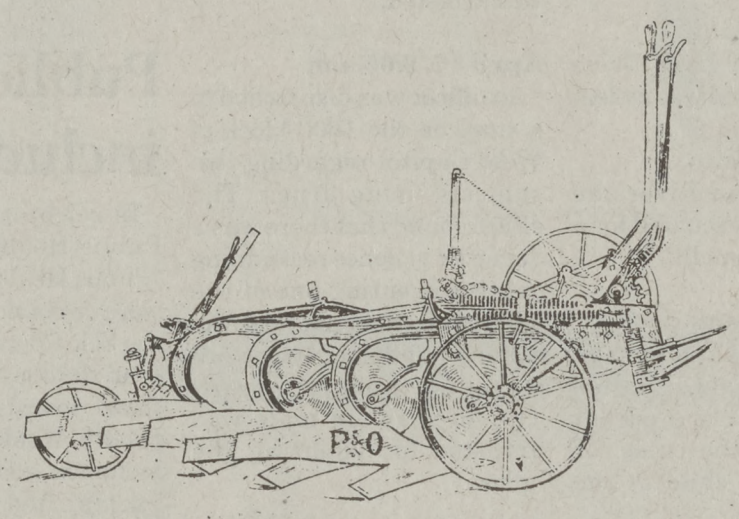

Ayes, Democrats Simmons, Williams, Smith of Georgia, Thomas, Robinson, Gore, Jones of New Mexico, Gerry, Lewis and Nugent.

The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by a thousand people in front of the Court House in Sacramento on Thanksgiving Day.

Where were the other 74,000 people who should have been there to do their share of the singing?

Likely in church.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

And then there was Oakland

A judge decided the rights of a couple of visiting women were violated when they were handcuffed and detained during a "high risk" traffic stop a few years ago (see last week's News-Ledger).

The women – with toddlers in the car – were stopped by four police officers, guns drawn. They were then handcuffed and placed in a patrol car until they and their car were "cleared" and released with a traffic citation.

The reason for the "high risk" style of police stop? The car's driver, a native of Ghana, did not pull over for several blocks after an officer started using his lights and siren to conduct a traffic stop over an unsafe lane change.

Clearly, the pair did not "deserve" to find themselves looking into the barrels of a number of pistols and a rifle. Clearly, they did nothing to morally justify being treated like violent criminals — handcuffed, separated from their children and detained.

The question at hand, though, is a bit tougher than whether they "deserved" such traumatic treatment. The question is whether the police department's policy allowing officers to conduct this kind of a traffic stop after a "failure to yield" is a reasonable policy.

Is a "failure to yield" sufficient provocation to allow police to respond in numbers, weapons drawn? Is a "failure to yield," on its own, enough to lead officers to believe their safety may be in jeopardy and allow them to call for heavyhanded, "high risk" tactics?

A jury awarded damages to these two women totaling about $34,000 – a small sum in today's legal world, and far less than their attorney requested.

One wonders if the city of Oakland was on the minds of some of those jurors. Just a few weeks before the Yolo jury's decision, a pair of Oakland police officers were shot to death after pulling a car over for a violation. When other officers converged on the suspect's hiding place in an apartment complex, two more officers were gunned down.

The quadruple homicide was California's latest reminder that a "routine" traffic stop can quickly turn fatal for police.

That reminder can't erase the ugly experience those two tourists experienced in West Sacramento in this particular "high risk" traffic stop in 2006. But it does at least help to explain why it happened.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Police 'wrongdoing'

In re: "Jury says City owes," (News-Ledger April 15) our city's attorney, Mr. Angelo, responds as if the judge's ruling really didn't mean much, that depending on the circumstances, how much the city might have to pay out this time, he may appeal, that he totally disagrees with the judge's decision, and apparently the jury's decision against him, etc. I didn't think you could disagree with a judge's decision when he rules on something. Nowhere is there any expression of apology or sense of wrongdoing at all for putting these two women through this horrible experience, being handcuffed at gunpoint and put in the back of a patrol car, with your two toddlers sitting stranded and scared in their car, all because they didn't pull their car over fast enough.

As a matter of fact, it sounds like Mr. Angelo plans on being back in court real soon for just the same thing, because he says no wrongdoing occurred. I realize this might create job security for the city attorney but the City has better places to spend the money I'm sure.

The federal judge and jury told the City and Mr. Angelo that these police officers overreacted and did violate these women's rights, and I expect that most citizens of West Sacramento who found themselves in a similiar situation would expect a right to better treatment than these ladies received. Mr. Angelo doesn't seem to get that.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"JCVD" — I never thought I'd use the words "best," "movie" and "Jean-Claude Van Damme" in the same sentence, but here it is: "JCVD" is the best Jean-Claude Van Damme movie ever.

Jean-Claude Van Damme stars as ... wait for it ... Jean-Claude Van Damme, a flat-broke, down-and-out ex-action star who can't get any work and is in a heated legal battle with his ex-wife over custody of their daughter.

He returns to Brussels to live, and one day while at a post office, a bunch of thugs bust in to rob the place, taking all the patrons (including Jean-Claude Van Damme) hostage. The police show up and somehow get the impression that Jean-Claude Van Damme is the guy holding everyone hostage. This leaves Jean-Claude Van Damme in the curious pickle of having to not only protect the hostages from the thugs, but also act as a negotiator for the thugs with the police.

"JCVD" has some great action scenes, which surprised me. For an older guy, Jean-Claude Van Damme still has some good moves. And the ending, which I won't spoil, is an awesome, non-Hollywood resolution of the story. Check it out.

"Frost/Nixon: The Complete Interviews" — Looking to cash in on the DVD release of the feature film comes this two-disc collection of the historic 1977 interviews between David Frost and Richard Nixon. When they first aired, the interviews captured 45 million television viewers, who watched as Frost hammered away at the former president over details of the Watergate scandal. Granted, this isn't a DVD for everyone, but for history buffs and political junkies, this DVD set is gold.

"Barbra Streisand: The Concerts" — Fans of Babs will simply be giddy over this three-disc set. The first disc is her sold-out 2006 Ft. Lauderdale concert, including 10 songs never before seen on DVD; disc two is the 1994 concert in Anaheim, which was her first show following a 17-year hiatus; and disc three 3 is "Putting It Together: The Making of the Broadway Album," which includes as special features performance clips from her TV specials of the 1960s and '70s.

W.C. Handy might not have been the father of the blues, but a new book suggests that at the very least he was the father of the commercialization of the blues.

William Christopher Handy was born in 1873 in Florence, Ala., the son of a preacher. He studied at Teachers Agricultural and Mechanical College in Huntsville and then joined a minstrel show as a cornet player. After touring for several years, he formed his own band in Memphis in 1903.

While waiting at a train station late one night in Mississippi, he heard something that changed his life. A black musician sat near Handy, and as he played his guitar, he pressed a knife on the strings. The sound was unforgettable, and it was one of Handy's first encounters with the blues. The experience was electrifying and impacted everything in his life that followed.

Robertson's highly readable account of Handy's life is must reading for those interested in the history of American music. In addition to his successful musical catalog, in 1914 Handy composed the most celebrated blues song ever written: "St. Louis Blues." Recalling a visit to St. Louis years before, Handy incorporated the memory of a drunken woman stumbling down a street near the riverfront. As she passed him, she muttered, "My man's got a heart like a rock cast in the sea." It became a fragment of one of the most important lyrics ever written.

This book weaves a rich tapestry of the worlds that Handy inhabited during his life. As Robertson points out, his life story is in many ways the story of the birth of our country's indigenous culture, and that is why — more than a half century after his death — he is important and his contributions indelible.

Q: I love the character of Jan Levinson on "The Office." Will she be back anytime soon? — Meghan P., via e-mail

A: I recently spoke with Melora Hardin, who plays Levinson, about all of her upcoming projects, including "Hannah Montana: The Movie" and "17 Again." Asked about "The Office," she assured me that "while I won't be filming any more scenes this season, next season I will be there."

During her break from "The Office" this past winter, Melora was treading the boards on Broadway as Roxie Hart in "Chicago." Melora describes that experience as "absolutely a dream come true. To be able to use all those things I've been honing my whole life was so wonderful. I've been dancing since I was 5, acting professionally since I was 6 and singing my whole life, so it was pretty neat for all those things to culminate. To get to do it all at once with such an amazing character as Roxie, and in such a great production with such lovely people, was really quite a wonderful experience."

Q: I was thinking about an older sitcom the other day, which starred Kelly Ripa and Faith Ford. What was the name of it, and can I find it on DVD? — Jennie J., Port Charlotte, Fla.

A: The show you are thinking about is "Hope & Faith." It ran for three seasons (from 2003 to 2006) on ABC, and it centered on the life of two sisters: Hope (Faith Ford), a down-to-earth wife and mother living in Glen Falls, Ohio, and Faith (Kelly Ripa), a former soap-opera actress who moves in with her sister when her character is killed off on her show, called "The Sacred and the Sinful." The sitcom was created by real-life soap-opera actress, Joanna Johnson, who loosely based the story on her own experiences working on "The Bold and the Beautiful." "Hope & Faith, Season 1" was just released on DVD, and can be found online and at local retail stores.

Q: I have been hearing the rumors for months and want to know if it's true: Will there be a sequel to the "Sex and the City" movie? — A Reader, via e-mail

A: It has finally been confirmed that Carrie and the girls will be back for another movie based on the popular hit HBO series. Expect the "Sex and the City" sequel to hit theaters on May 28, 2010.

Q: I recently saw the movie "The Notebook" on TV and thought that James Garner and Gena Rowlands were wonderful. I also really liked the performances of the actors who played their characters when they were younger. Can you tell me anything about them? — Virginia O., Fort Myers, Fla.

A: Ryan Gosling, 29, and Rachel McAdams, 31, portrayed the younger versions of Noah and Allie. Ryan and Rachel have been an on-again/off-again couple since filming "The Notebook" back in 2004. (Currently, they appear to be "off.")

Healthy French Toast

Our slimmed-down take on this Sunday-morning favorite is practically saintly. Subbing in low-fat milk and egg whites gives it half the fat and a third less cholesterol than traditional French toast. Plus, it's a cinch to whip up. One more blessing in disguise: You can still serve it with maple syrup, which is naturally fat-free.

- 2 large egg whites
- 1 large egg
- 3/4 cup(s) low-fat (1 percent) milk
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Salt
- 2 teaspoons margarine or butter
- 8 slices firm whole-wheat bread
- Maple syrup (optional)
- Fresh blackberries, raspberries and blueberries (optional)

1. Preheat oven to 200 degrees F. In pie plate, with whisk, beat egg whites, egg, milk, vanilla and 1/2 teaspoon salt until blended. In 12-inch nonstick skillet, on medium heat, melt 1 teaspoon margarine.

2. Dip bread slices, one at a time, in egg mixture, pressing bread lightly to coat both sides well. Place 3 or 4 slices in skillet, and cook 6 to 8 minutes or until lightly browned on both sides.

3. Transfer French toast to cookie sheet; keep warm in oven. Repeat with remaining margarine, bread slices and egg mixture. Serve French toast with maple syrup and berries if you like. Makes 4 servings.

• Each serving: About 300 calories, 9g total fat (2g saturated), 56mg cholesterol, 755mg sodium, 46g total carbohydrate, 6g dietary fiber, 12g protein.

Asparagus Is Perfect for Spring Recipes

Nothing says spring is here like a beautiful bunch of crisp asparagus. While asparagus is available year-round, it's much better when purchased locally.

Asparagus is easy to select and prepare, and comes in a variety of vibrant colors including green, violet, purple and white. It also grows wild and is commercially available fresh, frozen and canned. The stalks range in size from colossal to small. Various types and colors of asparagus can be used without any noticeable difference in the taste, so mix and match colors and sizes for visual interest.

Asparagus should be crisp and firm, not limp or wrinkled, with tightly closed tips. Dull colors and ridges in the stems are an indication of a lack of freshness. The stalks should not be limp or dry at the cut and of uniform thickness.

If you're planning to use the asparagus on the same day, rinse it under cool water and pat the stalks dry with a paper towel. Smaller stalks can be broken or cut at the point where the stem naturally snaps. Peeling the end of thicker stalks with a paring knife or a vegetable peeler removes any woody stems and can be done up to 2 hours before cooking. Place the prepared asparagus in a plastic bag in the refrigerator to stay crisp until ready to cook.

Fresh asparagus should never be washed or soaked before storing. If the asparagus is bound with a rubber band, remove it, as it will pinch and bruise the stalks. Asparagus can be stored for up to two days if the stalks are trimmed and placed upright in a jar with about an inch of water in the bottom. Cover the asparagus with a plastic bag and store the spears in the refrigerator.

Asparagus cooks in minutes and can be prepared steamed or boiled in the microwave or oven. It tastes delicious hot or cold, and it also freezes well if blanched first in hot water.

Asparagus is a nutritional powerhouse. One-half cup of cooked asparagus contains significant amounts of folic acid, vitamin C, potassium and beta-carotene. It's also a heart-healthy food, and a natural diuretic.

This versatile vegetable works well as a room-temperature appetizer, blended into a soup, as a flavorful side dish, the main ingredient in a colorful salad or as part of a main course like my recipe for Lemon Chicken with Asparagus. Preparing asparagus is a delicious and nutritious way to celebrate spring.

LEMON CHICKEN WITH ASPARAGUS

- 4 chicken breasts, about 3 pounds, washed and fat trimmed and removed
- 1 1/2 tablespoons olive oil
- 4 garlic cloves, chopped
- 1 red bell pepper, chopped
- 1/2 pound asparagus, stalks trimmed and cut into 1 inch pieces
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 1 1/2 teaspoons poultry seasoning
- 1 teaspoon lemon zest
- 1/2 cup chicken stock
- 3 cups cooked rice

In a large non-stick skillet, heat the oil over medium high heat. Season the chicken pieces with the salt, pepper and poultry seasoning. Place the chicken, skin-side down, and cook for 5 to 7 minutes. Turn the pieces skin-side up, and cook until golden brown and done, about 5 minutes. Stir in the garlic and red bell pepper. Add the asparagus and cook for 1 minute. Stir in the zest and the chicken stock and bring to a simmer. Cover and cook for 3 minutes. Serve immediately over hot rice.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO ADOPT A MITIGATED NEGATIVE DECLARATION

A Mitigated Negative Declaration has been prepared for the proposed Wastewater Treatment Plant decommissioning project in the City of West Sacramento. The lead agency for the proposed project is the City of West Sacramento.

The City of West Sacramento proposes to decommission its existing wastewater treatment plant (WWTP) located at 1991 South River Road. As of October 31, 2007, wastewater flow has been diverted to the Sacramento Regional County Sanitation District's (SRCSD) Elk Grove treatment facility. The WWTP is currently owned and managed by the City, and includes the City's Public Works Corporation Yard. This project involves the decommissioning and demolition of the WWTP and the Corporation Yard including all facilities, structures, piping, and other components located above ground and below ground to a depth of approximately twenty feet, with the exception of the outfall structure at the Sacramento River, which would be capped and left in place. At the conclusion of demolition activities, the site would be graded and seeded with native vegetation. Future use of the site is unknown at this time.

The Mitigated Negative Declaration concludes that with the implementation of recommended mitigation measures, there will be no significant adverse impacts on the environment. Copies of the Mitigated Negative Declaration are on file in the office of the West Sacramento Public Works and Community Development Department at 1110 West Capitol Avenue, 2nd Floor, West Sacramento, CA 95691 (916-617-4645).

Any affected or interested parties may submit comments to the Public Works and Community Development Department no later than 5 P.M. on May 22, 2009.
